Contact: David Traub, 781-830-4800 x 217

District Attorney William Keating has confirmed the identity of the woman whose body was found burning in the Blue Hills Reservation last Saturday.

“At 2 p.m. today, the Medical Examiner's Office was able to positively identify Kristyn L. Genereux, of Plymouth , Mass. , born June 2, 1967 ,” District Attorney Keating said.

Ms. Genereux resided at 3A Cortelli Court , Plymouth . Her remains were found by a hiker at 3:45 p.m. Saturday, June 6, 2009 , in a portion of the Reservation physically in Quincy but mainly accessible from Rte. 28 in Milton .

“We are thankful for the good work of the media in publicizing the rings and other identifying information about Ms. Genereux overnight,” Norfolk District Attorney William R. Keating said today. “That publicity generated calls about multiple individuals, and our investigators were able to help the Medical Examiner make this link.”

Keating asked for the public's continued assistance in the investigation. This information can be forwarded anonymously if desired. “Clearly anyone who knew Ms. Genereux, knew of her activities last week or who saw anything unusual in the Blue Hills Reservation we ask that they contact police,” District Attorney Keating said. “It has not been established whether she died in the Blue Hills, so potential callers should not limit themselves because they were aware of her activities elsewhere.”

“Often, information you may believe to be inconsequential can help advance an investigations in ways you could not foretell,” Keating said.

District Attorney Keating stated that Ms. Genereux's family had been informed of the identification and that the family had requested privacy during this time. Ms. Genereux was mother of four, all of whom are safely in the care of others.

Keating said his office continues to investigate this as a suspicious death.

Any and all defendants mentioned are legally innocent until proven guilty.
